Last year NYC taxpayers shelled out about
$2 million for the JROTC programs at 19 NYC high schools.

We can stop this -- here's what to do:

1. Contact Robert Jackson, Chair of the Council's Education Committee, and ask him to hold hearings on the JROTC program with a view to ending the City's line item appropriation.

Email: RJackson@council.nyc.gov Telephone: 212-788-7007

Postal mail: 250 Broadway, Rm. 1747, New York, NY 10007

Below is a sample letter to Councilmember Jackson. One cautionary note: be nice - Robert Jackson is one of the good guys. And please send a copy to your own Council member and Speaker Christine Quinn, Mayor Michael Bloomberg and Betsy Gotbaum, Public Advocate.

Dear Councilman Jackson,

Last year the taxpayers of New York City contributed approximately 2 million dollars for JROTC programs at 19 New York City high schools. I am calling on you, as the chair of the City Council Education Committee, to hold public hearings on this issue. By bringing this issue before the public, perhaps this practice can be terminated and these funds can be re-directed to help restore some of the resources and programs that have been stripped from our children's curriculum.

Sincerely yours...
