STOP THE MILITARIZATION OF THE AFRICAN CONTINENT

In 2007 the U.S. Department of Defense announced the creation of a new U.S. Africa Command infrastructure named AFRICOM. This military command will consolidate all U.S. functions (Agriculture, Commerce, Treasury, Peace Corps, Education, etc.) under AFRICOM's control.

Established under the guise of "fighting terrorism" and providing humanitarian services AFRICOM's true purpose is the exploitation of natural resources and the further militarization of the African continent. Africa currently supplies 24% of oil imported by the U.S. The continent is a source of countless strategic resources including uranium, diamonds, chromium, gold and coltan (which is used in cell phones, laptops, pagers and other electronic devices).

Only Liberia agreed to host AFRICOM's Central Command while all other African nations refused it. Thus, the Command Center has been stuck in Stuttgart Germany awaiting further developments.
